I OVERVIEW

1 This inquest concerns the death of Mr. O'Neil Singh Ramnath, who was born on March 4, 1975, and died on December 26, 2016, at the age of 41, while in custody at the Toronto East Detention Centre (TEDC), located at 55 Civic Rd, Scarborough, ON M1L 2K9.

2 Mr. Ramnath was the father of four children: Malik, Tarique, Khalil and Kalysha. His partner was Caitlin Normoyle.

3 On October 7, 2016, Mr. Ramnath was admitted to the Central East Correctional Centre (CECC), for offences of Theft Under $5000 (X2) and Fail to Comply Recognizance (X3). Mr. Ramnath was moved several times between CECC and TEDC. From October 7, 2016, to December 8, 2016, Mr. Ramnath was subjected to repeated institutional transfers between CECC and TEDC, on five occasions for court appearances in Oshawa and Scarborough.

4 On December 15, 2016, Mr. Ramnath complained of right ankle pain. He received treatment provided as per medical directive and placed for the doctor's parade.

5 On December 20, 2016, Mr. Ramnath was seen by a doctor at TEDC. He was prescribed medication and scheduled for a recheck in 1 week.

6 December 26, 2016, Mr. Ramnath's cell mate could not wake him up. He banged on the door to get the attention of the staff.

7 The nursing staff and correctional staff responded determined that Mr. Ramnath was without vital signs. Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and the Automated External Defibrillator (AED) were use in efforts to revive Mr. Ramnath. He was on the top bunk and CPR was attempted there on the top bunk.

II THE NATURE OF THIS INQUEST AND SCOPE

Mandatory Inquest

8 The Coroner's Act provides that an inquest is mandatory in circumstances, such as this case, in which a person dies while committed to and on the premises of a correctional institution.¹

The Mandatory Five (5) Questions

9 This inquest is mandatory under Section 10 of the Coroners Act because Mr. Ramnath died while he was being detained in a provincial correctional facility. The purpose of an inquest is to answer the five mandatory questions set out in s. 31\(1\) of the Coroners Act:

- a. who the deceased was;
- b. how the deceased came to his death;
- c. when the deceased came to his death;
- d. where the deceased came to his death; and
- e. by what means the deceased came to his death.

10 The Ontario Divisional Court described the three functions of an inquest in the following terms:

... the inquest should serve three primary functions: as a means for public ascertainment of facts relating to deaths, as a means for formally focusing community attention on and initiating community response to preventable deaths, and as a means for satisfying the community that the circumstances surrounding the death of no one of its members will be overlooked, concealed, or ignored [emphasis added].²

11 Justice Stephen Goudge observed that the Coroner's Inquests involves "The drive to understand such deaths is a manifestation of the value the society places on life and human dignity."³

The Scope of the Inquest

12 It is also the role of the Presiding Officer to decide, in a fair, balanced, and transparent manner, the most important issues to be explored at an inquest, in consultation with inquest counsel, inquest investigators, and parties. Presiding Officers are well-positioned to do this given our training, skill, and experience. Further, Presiding Officer are required to determine the scope of the inquest based on a prior involvement in reviewing the brief and directing our own investigation into the subject matter.⁴ The draft scope is then circulated so that potential parties can provide their input, if necessary. These decisions inform the scope of the inquest and the evidence to be admitted. Ultimately, it is within the Presiding Officer's discretion to set the scope and decide what evidence will be tendered.⁵

13 The issues to be explored at this inquest are contained in the scope of the inquest. As presiding officer, I have carefully reviewed the results of the coroner's investigation. The scope of this inquest will touch on two issues:

1. The circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. O'Neil Singh Ramnath;
2. Past opioid overdose inquests and implementation of those jury recommendations by the Ministry of the Solicitor General.

14 Section 31\(3\) encourages the jury to make recommendations. It reads:

"Subject to subsection (2) the jury may make recommendations directed to the avoidance of death in similar circumstances or respecting any other matter arising out of the inquest."

15 The verdict also gives the jury an opportunity to make recommendations — which may be addressed to organizations, governments, ministries, and other relevant bodies — and recommendations, if the jury makes them, will be aimed at preventing further deaths.

16 Inquests are unique legal proceedings. An inquest is not a trial. It is not the role of the Presiding Officer or jury to decide any question of criminal or civil liability or to apportion guilt or attribute blame.⁶

17 In terms of preventing further deaths, this is the "social and preventive function." As observed in People's First:⁷

The public interest in Ontario inquests has become more and more important in recent years. The traditional investigative function of the inquest to determine how, when, where, and by what means the deceased came to her death, is no longer the predominant feature of every inquest. That narrow investigative function, to lay out the essential facts surrounding an individual death, is still vital to the families of the deceased and to those who are directly involved in the death.

A separate and wider function is becoming increasingly significant; the vindication of the public interest in the prevention of death by the public exposure of conditions that threaten life. The separate role of the jury in recommending systemic changes to prevent death has become more and more important. The social and preventive function of the inquest which focuses on the public interest has become, in some cases, just as important as the distinctly separate function of investigating the individual facts of individual deaths and the personal roles of individuals involved in the death.

18 To the extent that opioid overdose and toxicity deaths remain a continuous problem in provincial jails, the past recommendations and implementations from previous inquests will result in judicial economy and the expeditious and just determination in this inquest as the jury will have access to this relevant and material information.

19 Scope two is important for the jury to understand the death in a broader context and social framework to enable the jury to add depth and quality to their recommendations.

Pre-Inquest Meeting

20 A pre-Inquest meeting took place on June 21, 2024, by videoconference where parties identified as potentially having an interest in the inquest were invited to attend.

21 Applications for standing have been received from:

- a. Jason Kirsh, Counsel on behalf of the Ministry of the Solicitor General
- b. Caitlin Normoyle, partner of Mr. Ramnath on behalf of the family.

22 In this inquest, the Jury will be looking to past to reach a verdict on the five questions and, if necessary, make recommendations for the future. No one is on trial at an inquest. However, it is important that any potential party with an interest in this inquest be provided the opportunity for effective participation at the inquest through a grant of standing.⁸

23 For the reasons given below, all the applicants for standing listed above are designated as parties to the inquest.

III THE TEST TO BE DESIGNATED AS A PARTY TO AN INQUEST

24 I have applied the following framework in my analysis of the applications to be a party at this inquest. A Presiding Officer may designate a person as a party to an inquest under the Chief Coroner's Rules of Procedure ("CCRoP") in one of two ways:

A. Person with Standing

Under CCRoP Rule 2.1(ii), pursuant to s. 41 of the Coroners Act, the Presiding Officer shall designate a person as a person with standing ("PWS") he finds that the person is substantially and directly interested in the inquest. In order to be designated as a PWS, the applicant must satisfy at least one of two tests, the Private Law test, or the Public Interest test.

B. Person Permitted to Make Submissions

Under CCRoP Rule 2.1(iii), pursuant to s. 50.1 of the Coroners Act, the coroner may designate a person as a person permitted to make submissions ("PPS") where the coroner finds that the designation is in the interests of the inquest. The basis for the person's participation, and the degree and manner to which the person may participate in the inquest, arise from, and are limited to the Presiding Officer's order.

Private Law Test

25 The private law test is met when the applicant satisfies one or more of the following components:

- a. Personal - Close personal connection to the deceased,
- b. Reputational — Potential exposure to implicit criticism through the inquest process; or,
- c. Implementational — Potential responsibility for implementation of jury recommendations.

Public Interest Test

26 The public interest test is met when the applicant demonstrates that it satisfies all of the following components:

- a. The applicant legitimately represents a group of persons, who share a unique identity of legal interest with the deceased;
- b. This group of persons represented by the applicant will be acutely affected by the recommendations; and,
- c. The applicant brings unique expertise and perspective to the inquest.

27 In order to be granted standing, an applicant must fully meet criteria for either the private law or public interest test. An applicant will not be granted standing where it only partially satisfies each of the private law and public interest tests.

28 The participatory rights of a person with standing (PWS) are limited to the areas in which the PWS is substantially and directly interested.

IV ANALYSIS AND RULING

Caitlin Normoyle

29 Caitlin Normoyle had a close personal connection to Mr. Ramnath. She wrote that "O'Neil was a very significant part of my life. O'Neil was the father of our daughter. I've represented him in all of his affairs and would like to continue to do so."

30 In terms of the area of interest she seeks standing in respect to Scope 1 and 2:

- i. Representing Mr. Ramnath's life.
- ii. Methods of prevention to deter this manner of death from re-occurring in the future.

31 Standing is granted to Caitlin Normoyle as a representative of herself and the family of Mr. Ramnath in the following area of interest: Scope 1, the personal interest of the family of O'Neil Singh Ramnath at the inquest into his death.

32 Ms. Normoyle can represent the interests of the family at this inquest as a self-represented person or through counsel.

Ministry of the Solicitor General

33 The Ministry of the Solicitor General and its officers and medical staff have a direct and substantial interest in the inquest given their specific involvement.

34 Under the Ministry of Correctional Services Act, RSO 1990, c M.22, Ministry of the Solicitor General operates and regulates the governance of provincial correctional facilities in Ontario inclusive of Correctional Centres, Detention Centres and Jails. See also, Correctional Services Transformation Act, 2018, S.O. 2018, c. 6 - Bill 6.

35 Correctional Officers, Nurses, Doctors, and Administrators are responsible for the care, custody and control of persons who are detained in custody on remand, or an immigration hold and/or serving a sentencing of less than two years. The relevant sections of the Act briefly are section 5 which outlines the "Functions of Ministry", section 12, which refers to "Protection from personal liability", and section 22, which refers to "Inspections, Investigations." Regulation 778 under the Ministry of Correctional Services Act, generally operationalizes the Act in so far as the specific responsibilities of various officials in the correctional system are concerned.

36 In addition to the legislation, the Statement of Ethical Principles, the Ottawa-Carleton Detention Centre Standing Orders and the Ontario Correctional Services Code of Conduct and Professionalism (COCAP) are part of the Ministry policies and procedures governing the management and supervision of its Detention Centre.

37 The Correctional Services Code of Conduct and Professionalism Policy for employees working in correctional services provides, in part, that employees have a professional responsibility to:

- ensure the well-being of people in custody
- maintain a respectful, safe, and healthy environment⁹

38 The Ministry of the Solicitor General, given its statutory responsibilities, may be subject to implicit criticism through the evidence before the jury, and therefore meets the reputational component of the private law test. In addition, it bears direct responsibility for implementing jury recommendations, and therefore meets the implementational test. Standing is granted to the Ministry of the Solicitor General in the following area of interest: Scope 1, The reputational and implementational interest of Ministry of the Solicitor General in the circumstances of the death of Mr. Ramnath and Scope 2, Past opioid overdose inquests and implementation of those jury recommendations by the Ministry of the Solicitor General.

Participatory rights & overlapping interests

39 The inquest will begin at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, September 23, 2024, and is estimated it will last approximately 3 days and hear from approximately 5 witnesses. This is a virtual hearing using a videoconference platform and it will be live streamed.

40 Access to justice, efficiency and transparency can all be promoted by virtual hearings, especially in a case, such as this one, where Scope 2 has province wide implications.

41 In Stanford v. Harris, the Divisional Court made the following trite observation:

One of the functions of an inquest into a death in a prison or other institution not ordinarily open to public view is to provide the degree of public scrutiny necessary to ensure that it cannot be said, once the inquest is over, that there has been a whitewash or a cover-up. There is no better antidote to ill-founded or mischievous allegations and suspicions than full and open scrutiny.¹⁰

42 Any person in any part of the world can view this inquest by clicking on the livestream link.

43 In Coroner's Court we have had very good success with our virtual inquests. Jurors have reported being able to see and hear the evidence very well and to be well-supported during deliberations. Of course, occasional technical difficulties can arise, and so I ask for everyone's patience when that happens. It is no different than the technical difficulties that occur during in-person inquests — jurors stuck in traffic, snow storms, projector screens that won't come down, etc. And of course, when there are viruses going around, it's safer and there is a smaller chance of delays resulting from someone who develops a cough or who otherwise appears contagious.

44 While this inquest is being conducted virtually, it is a legal proceeding, so I ask that you commit to the same level of decorum as you would if you were in a physical court room. Participants are reminded to conduct themselves with dignity and respect for this inquest.

45 I remind all PWS that their participatory rights arise from, and are limited to the areas of interest in which, standing was granted. There is a potential for overlap among the interests of some of the PWS at this inquest. Except with my prior permission, those with overlapping interests may not duplicate each other's areas of questioning of a given witness. This may be achieved by working together to avoid duplication. If a PWS is of the view that duplication is required, they must seek my leave in advance of the witness testifying.

46 I thank all parties and counsel for their applications and participation in this inquest proceeding.

APPENDIX

STATEMENT OF SCOPE

Inquest into the death of O'Neil Singh Ramnath

This inquest will look into the circumstances of the death of O'Neil Singh Ramnath and examine the events of his death on or about December 26, 2016, to assist the jury in answering the five mandatory questions set out in s. 31\(1\) of the Coroners Act and to help the jury make recommendations to prevent further deaths, should the jury decide to make recommendations. The following are the five mandatory questions for the jury:

- a. who the deceased was;
- b. how the deceased came to his or her death;
- c. when the deceased came to his or her death;
- d. where the deceased came to his or her death; and
- e. by what means the deceased came to his or her death

Specifically, beyond the facts required to accurately answer the five questions and understand the circumstances of the death, we will be addressing the following issues to the extent that these issues may have relevance to potential recommendations:

1. The circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. O'Neil Singh Ramnath;
2. Past opioid overdose inquests and implementation of those jury recommendations by the Ministry of the Solicitor General.

Excluded from the scope will be any in-depth exploration of the following:

1. Medical care provided by paramedics.
